DRY GOODS

THE MURPHY BUILDING, COR. MARKET & JONES STS.,

J. J. O'BRIEN & CO., PROPRIETORS.

Prominent among the enterprising firms in the retail trade in San Francisco is the Monster Dry Goods House of J. J. O'Brien & Co. This deservedly popular institution merits more than passing mention.

ITS FOUNDER.

In the year 1868, J. J. O'Brien, a young man of 21 years of age, opened a small general retail dry goods store on Third Street, then the leading business street of San Francisco In a short time, owing to his tact, ability and popularity, directed by sound judgment, his business developed to proportions which justified his removal to larger premises. Foreseeing the future success of Market Street as a business centre, he leased the Arcade building, next the Baldwin Hotel, a location then considered out of town. Despite the predictions of many business men, he found it necessary to enlarge the building from year to year, in order to accommodate his rapid y growing trade, until his business assumed such enormous proportions as necessitated his removal to larger premises.

THE MURPHY BLOCK.

His marvelous success since his removal to the building is equaled only by the magnificence of his premises. This monster institution occupies a total area of 24,000 square feet, and is the best appointed, best lighted, and one of the largest retail dry goods houses in the United States. Having been specially constructed for a first class trade, it affords purchasers the greatest personal comfort. Noticeable among its many advantages is its perfect ventilation, a pleasing change from the suffocating, impure atmosphere of dry-goods houses generally. Its counters laid in a continuous line would measure over a quarter of a mile in length, and are capable of accommodating a patronage of several thousands.

Ladies' Reception Room.

A visit to the Ladies' Reception Room impresses one with the preparations made for the comfort of its patrons; the architecture and decorations of this magnificently appointed room are of Moorish design, and surpass in elegance and artistic effect even the famous waiting room of the Bon Marche, in Paris. Its tables are supplied w th magazines, journals and writing materials for the convenience of lady visitors. Adjoining this room are the toilet rooms and dressing rooms, in charge of a lady attendant.

An idea of the immense volume of business transacted in this model establishment may be gained by a visit during business hours.

In the several departments can be found the choicest products of the most celebrated European factories, as well as the cheapest grades of Domestic Goods, it being the business principle of this house to cater to the requirements of all classes.

Another feature of this popular establishment is the uniform courtesy, and anxiety to please, manifested on all occasions in exchanging or refundir g money for purchases made where the goods are not entirely satisfactory. In fact, it may be said that this institution is in every way worthy of San Francisco, and an instance of what enterprise conducted on true business principles may accomplish in a large city.

The Mutual Life Insurance Company, of New York,

RICHARD A. McCURDY, PRESIDENT.

The largest Company in the World; the Oldest Company in the United States. It gives the most Liberal Policies, and pays the largest Dividends.

It is not only the Largest and Strongest, but also the best Company in the world, for the Policy-holder.

No other Company can produce such a record of wonderful success, or show such examples of profitable investment. It is a PURELY MUTUAL COMPANY. No Purely Mutual Life Insurance Company has ever failed. The entire profits of its immense business belong exclusively to its Policy-holders. The policies of the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York combine in a most liberal form of Contract the following desirable features:

THE BEST COMPANY.

The Mutual Life Insurance Company

OF NEW YORK.

RICHARD A. McCURDY, President.

IN fulfiling the design of its founders as a beneficent institution, under a perpetual charter, whose contracts run from generation to generation. At an early period, the Company took the foremost place among similar institutions, and it remains to-day the first of its class, both in its past achievements, and its capacity for future expansion. The history of the Company has been a record of steady, wonderful progress, and its permanence and regular growth stand in striking contrast with the fluctuating condition of the business world around it.

The Insurance business of the Company for the year 1885 shows a marked increase. This was no doubt largely due to a revision of the Policy contract, which was made, after full consideration, before the middle of the year. This new form of policy has proved acceptable to the public, and is sought more eagerly as it becomes better known and understood. The contract is simple in form, easily understood, and less burdensome in its requirements from the insured than any of the so-called "incontestable" forms, and in no respect more exposed to forfeiture or dispute.

ALTHOUSE WIND-MILL.

A Perfect Self-Regulator.

We guarantee our improved Mills to run in the lightest winds and not to blow down in the most severe gale.

Its chief points of merit are: Its ability to take care of itself in the severest gale—being so arranged that no increase of wind increases its speed. The quality of material used in its construction and the workmanship being the best. The simplicity of its machinery renders it next to impossible to get out of order, doing away with all expense after being erected.
